

The homes at Summit Residences have spacious living areas and unique designs that encompass quality finishes and unparalleled workmanship.

Buyers find their 'dream house'

Heading home from a visit with friends in Chilliwack, Bill and Linda Fitzpatrick chanced upon a sign for The Summit Residences.

"We decided to check it out on a whim. We walked into the show home and three days later we had the ball rolling to buy one," says Linda.

Besides falling in love with the spectacular show home, the Richmond couple was taken away by the breathtaking views of the snow-capped mountains and the Fraser Valley. "You couldn't pay me to leave; it's like being on holidays every day." The retired couple believes The Summit Residences offers a real sense of community they found lacking in their old neighbourhood. "This is the West Vancouver of the Fraser Valley, without the traffic headaches and the stress of city living," says Linda.

The Summit Residences combines the very best of urban living with flawless country living lifestyle, while seamlessly fitting into its natural, tranquil landscape.

"All of our homes at Summit Residences have been designed to take full advantage of the views," says Kevin Chester, owner of Domae Homes.

Building on a mountain requires an experienced builder, and Domae has worked hard to design and build plans for the uphill lots that would function well, and embrace the incredible views.

Domae has just introduced two plans, the Sundance and the Brighton, that allow the master bedroom to be incorporated into the main floor living. These unique designs offer this desirable feature, while enjoying the spectacular views through the vast expanse of glass. And a classic design, the Sunmeadow, is available on a limited number of downhill home sites.

A standout among the long list of features at Summit Residences is the quality control that goes into these homes. "We're very focused on high standards for every phase of the construction process," says Chester. "We create homes that we would be proud to live in ourselves."

Sundance features unique plan and incredible view.

Buyers appreciate that they can make their home their own. Domae offers well-thought-out designs, quality finishes and work closely with each homebuyer to personalize their home. The Summit Residences is an exclusive collection of 52 homes offering unparalleled quality and workmanship. For more information, telephone 604-824-6473 or visit www.summitresidences.ca
